The FAZI Italian Zootechnical Agricultural Fair is the event dedicated to the primary sector, agricultural equipment, and livestock farming at Centro Fiera Montichiari (Italy). It focuses on innovation as a key element in defining the economic, environmental, and social sustainability of modern agricultural enterprises. FAZI offers industry professionals a comprehensive exhibition dedicated to all segments of the production chain, confirming a deep-rooted commitment to agriculture and livestock farming.

FAZI is a point of reference for the entire primary sector supply chain. Companies in the sector work for the benefit of the entire national territory, and FAZI 2025 aims to make a concrete contribution to supporting our country's agricultural and livestock supply chain.

FAZI's numbers effectively summarize the importance of an event that consolidates its strengths and grows in quality and caliber: 9 occupied pavilions covering 47,000 square meters of covered space, 13,000 of which are entirely dedicated to livestock, and over 460 exhibitors and breeders attending the fair.

US tariffs), but with the awareness of being one of the cornerstones of global food security, thanks to the self-sufficiency achieved in almost all agricultural sectors.

"Italy, in particular, is one of the countries where agriculture successfully combines tradition with high added value, symbolized by large-scale PDO and PGI production, along with a specialization that ensures high profitability per hectare," stated Gianantonio Rosa, President of Centro Fiera Montichiari. "This scenario encourages FAZI to offer visitors a high-profile program, both in terms of exhibition and content. European agriculture is called upon to continue its journey through the ecological and digital transition, and as a trade fair center, we have a responsibility to offer visitors and stakeholders concrete tools for investing in the right direction."

FAZI 2025 will therefore focus on key agricultural issues and the challenges facing the primary sector in this particular economic phase—characterized by sharp increases in the prices of raw materials, energy, and fertilizers, as well as increasingly pressing climate change—while also keeping in mind the agricultural sector's forward-looking objectives, where the growing world population and the need for food security will be the cornerstones for designing efficient and sustainable production strategies.

The fair will once again feature the most important Italian and international brands of agricultural machinery and equipment, products and equipment for livestock farming, and solutions for stables and animal housing and breeding facilities. These brands combine production performance, cost containment, and environmental sustainability, as well as renewable energy, technologies, and innovations for highly digitalized agriculture and livestock farming.
